

Q Club helps further artistic reach of SSQ

In 2014, the Spokane Chamber Music Association launched a new support group, The Q Club. The mission of "The Q" is to "serve as the visionary group for donors who further the artistic reach of the Spokane String Quartet and make sure this intimate, sparkling experience of music is available to a wider audience."

Major donors are often instrumental in making up the difference in budgets of small ensembles (or even large orchestras for that matter) as ticket sales never fully meet for the expense of putting on a concert. We want to keep our ticket prices down so that the experience of chamber music is accessible to as much of the community as possible.

The Spokane String Quartet shares works by modern composers several times each season, and audience have responded favorably to the programming. But modern music can be costly. Q Club contributions also help pay the royalty fees so that the Quartet can continue to perform innovative works by modern composers.

These generous donors also have helped fund concert performances in Sandpoint and coaching of young musicians from the Spokane Youth Symphony.

The Q will offer its members a minimum of two special events per year just for Q Club members, combining fine food and wonderful chamber music in intimate settings that provide members with access to our musicians in a way attending a concert at the Bing or the Fox does not offer.

Our major donors will receive acknowledgement in our programs, and membership in this group will start when the donor gives a minimum of $250 per person annually, or $500 a couple, per year.

You're invited to renew your Q Club membership or join us for the first time for the 2019-20 season by including your $250 per person donation when you return your season ticket order form.
